

All products on our website are brands, not merely some programs. Microsoft PowerPoint 2007 and MS Office 2007 prepare you for the 2007 Microsoft Office program, which is a presentation. Once again, in places where there may be water, this [link].

Q: Targeting specific device on internal network I need to use a particular server on my internal network to provide a Java Web application, but I want it to use this Java Web application for IPTV devices only (IPTV terminals). How can I add different ports to each IPTV device? A: TCP/IP is a no-switches protocol, so you don't need to redirect specific IPTV devices. I mean that all you need is to correctly configure your router in order to have a NAT/Port-Forwarding on a specific port, and then use this port to run your service. So, if you have more than one IPTV device on the same internal network, you can use different port for each one of them to run the service on. If you need a more specific answer, just comment or elaborate your question.

Q: Uncaught TypeError: object is not a function i am using laravel 5.3 to build a web app and am trying to add some javascript to a.js file. here is the.js file (function($){ var uploader = new uploader(); $("#screenshot2").bind('click', function() { if(confirm('Are you sure you want to delete this image?')){ uploader.close(); } }); })(jQuery)); i am getting the following error message Uncaught TypeError: object is not a function any ideas what could be causing this? A: You can't pass $(element) to a native method of jQuery, only to an anonymous function, because jQuery is the variable name, not the "object". Use $ instead. You may also want to remove the () from around the function call, to make it a proper anonymous function.

Q: Find all images containing a particular word/phrase in HTML I have a simple text file which contains a lot of html code. The code contains a specific word. I would like to find all the images that
