Q: Highchart in a div without wrapping the divs I was wondering how i can get Highcharts to create 2 charts in a div without wrapping the div. The problem with wrapping divs is, that the width and height of the chart are restricted and it will look very strange. My goal is to make the graphs look good in all the browsers that i test. I'm using the Google charts library. A: Unfortunately, using Highcharts alone (without jQuery) does not seem to be possible. You would have to use other libraries, e.g. D3.js to make the charts look as desired, see: Also note that, you will not be able to resize the charts properly, as they are drawn in an iFrame, and the height of the iFrame is being kept constant. To get the desired resizing, you could have Highcharts render the charts, then use jQuery to draw them in a container, and finally, then draw the container within your container div. This is what I have come up with: Ask HN: Why haven't app stores become the mainstream way to download and run apps? - mpadilha Apple has a good business model. It allows developers to make money, developers develop for the iPhone, and those apps are sold at a pretty reasonable price. The problem is, developers don't seem to be jumping on this bandwagon. What's the problem here? ===== patio11 I'm sure that someone would produce a clever and amusing answer, but the problem is that when you have an entrenched market with no real
