A soothing piano tune sets the mood in the dimly lit room where you're welcomed to the home of the Eastwood family. The father, a well known architect, told you once that the place where you'll find the answer to the mystery of your parents' disappearance is in the basement. But even though you've followed him down into the dark, the place where your family should be still seems to be empty. What happened to them? Where are they? Our emotions start to get in the way, our hesitation to go forward is getting in the way... The place seems so haunted, so deadly. There are no friendly faces to be found, so you have to rely on your instincts alone and make sure that you will survive. The game was created with the cooperation of the talented Frédéric Thébault, who has given us some amazing music and sound effects. A lot of love has gone into Folia- Dear Father VR. We hope you'll like it as much as we do. Note: the game comes with Steam Achievements and Trading Cards, but the Steam store will not be available until later this year. You can support us by pre-ordering the game and by helping us spread the word to other gamers. (please, help us by tweeting). The main game is supported by additional content available on the Vita and HMDs as well! Engulfing VR experience - immerse yourself completely in the horrors with virtual reality (AVAILABLE FOR HTC VIVE 1.5 ONLY) Marcus Pitt, a young man special only by the fact that both of his parents work at a university, is one day drawn into the horrors that emerged at the very same campus. His journey to find his parents, or at least what happened to them, takes him into his worst nightmare, as he fights to find a way through, while staying alive and sane. The place of education has been turned into a place of horror and death. Starting with just a handful of items to help him get through the darkened corridors, Marcus has to summon all his strength to survive and keep on looking for his parents. Although it might already be too late, his hope to find them alive will be the last to die. Literally, as everyone else on the premises already seems to have been turned into a pile of gore. Find your way and look for clues to be able to continue and uncover the reason as to why a university

We are in the midst of a high pressure ridge and a strong jet of air heading to the southwest. We will continue to shower through Wednesday night and Thursday. Low temperatures will generally be higher than we have seen in the past 7-10 days. Southeast winds will peak this afternoon at approximately 8 mph and gradually easing through the evening. On Thursday northeast winds will begin to build on Thursday morning and gradually increase through the day. These winds will cut off some showers across northern New Mexico on Thursday. Temperatures will generally be warmer than normal this week. Friday will continue to warm up with temperatures in the lower 70s. A storm system will approach from the northwest and deliver several strong to possibly severe thunderstorms during the evening through the overnight hours. Some of these storms could be strong enough to produce large hail and high winds over our region. c9d1549cdd
