I made this game with no technical constraints. I was inspired by a combination of classic old-school platform games (Zelda, Mega Man) and modern web games (Puzzle Quest, Sid the sloth). I love the exploration parts of these games and wanted to put some of that feeling into a game. I have no special interest in make games that can only run in the browser. I enjoy both web games and native games. There's never a good reason to pick one over the other. A: Sumple you are The Fixer of this world. Being summoned by seemingly no one is strange enough as it is, but seeing such a lifeless world makes it even weirder. Find out why it came to be like. And try to understand the culture of the people that used to live here. It might make you want to reconsider next time you want to hate on someone. Sumple is a 2D platform game where you help people. You go on a mission to explore the old ruins of a deceased civilization while trying to find out why there is nobody around. A: Blooddrop Blooddrop is a roguelike side scrolling space shooter. You play in an isometric environment. You go from planet to planet to fight monsters and the all important techs. Each planet is determined by what armament you have at your disposal. A bit oldschool, but fun. A: This one is a bit unusual, as I've never heard of this game before it was being asked here. But the game looks to have been inspired by the game Utopia from 2005 that was a very quick flash game. The present invention relates to a laser diode array, and more particularly to a laser diode array used for a light source of a projector or the like, and to a method of producing the same. In recent years, laser diode arrays which have a high output, less divergence, and are resistant to electro-magnetic interference have gained increased attention as a light source of a projector or the like. As such laser diode arrays, laser diode arrays using a quantum cascade laser (QCL) and laser diode arrays using a vertical cavity surface emitting laser (VCSEL) have attracted attention. The laser diode arrays using a VCSEL, a QCL or the like each have a laser light emission portion and a reflection mirror. These laser diode

SOLVED # In 48 hours, you've received a distress signal from a Federation deep space frigate. The coordinates and data shared to you on the call were written down on the back of a picture. The picture was blank on the front but the back was filled with information - Everything from the Federation Boarder, Ship Enviroments, Astronomical Observations and much more. What you have to do is to initiate the activation of the communications array and see for yourself what happened. The Federation is reaching out to you for help. Make a hasty trip across the space to the new coordinates. You're on your own and the only resources you have are your deep space suit's well equipped battery and laser. Who will you be? A specialist that can handle any situation? A rash action-man that will play the game by the book? Or maybe you're a foresighted genius that truly understands what the hell's going on. It all depends on you. # QUESTIONS # # What is a Shmup? A classic "shoot-em-up" - video game which involves shooting enemies on screen and completing the level. The game is a simulation where players become the shopkeeper. Customers will continue to flow in. If you want to become the best cafe, you have to make cups of coffee for customers. The customers have various tastes and tastes will continue to change. You have to be careful, and watch out for your customers. Rules: 1. When a customer is found, the game automatically starts. 2. We do not guarantee the safety of the shop. 3. If your shop has no water, you will not be able to operate. 4. Your shop will have limits. 5. All rights to intellectual property to this work belong to the author. Thanks to everyone who participated in Counter Fight! [News] March 2014 - RSR with Coffee Shop Runner (CSR) implemented! Counter Fight 1, 2, & 3 is only "merchandising games"! In April of 2012, Counter Fight started a new project with coffee shop runners. After finishing the new project, we felt as if we had run out of energy. So we changed the name to "Cafe Counter Fight", and with that we hope to see new works! Cafe Counter Fight (CCF) is basically a game where you operate a café. The café has 4 seats, and you are the café owner. The café has a drink menu, a sandwich menu, and a coffee menu. You can make coffee, play drinking games, and also serve sandwiches and drinks. The player's task is to take out cups of coffee from the furnace, and prepare a sandwich or drink menu items. At the same time, the player is also dealing with customers who come to the counter. In accordance with the customers' orders, you prepare coffee, sandwiches, drinks, etc. The order of your customers will change every time. Shopkeepers are very small, specialized cafes which allows the player to become the shopkeeper. For this project, we created RSR based on CSR (Coffee Shop Runner). Cafe Counter Fight does not use any funds from ads. We thank those who supported the project until now, and those who have learned interesting information! [News] September 2013 - Café Counter Fight announced! On September 23, 2013, Coffee Shop Runner (CSR) Cafe Counter Fight by D.E.A.B. Team's progress has been announced. Please follow the link below.

1. Introduction 2. Full Version Notes 3. Story 4. Commenting, Deletion, and Fan Art 5. Contact Me As you know, I am a Hardcore Platformer (which can be also defined in that it involves jumping and running). On someones OC site some pictures were showcased of a platformer with crazy jumping puzzles and platforming levels. This made me think "What about a platformer where you get to free jump, unlimited jumps and add a little puzzle for flavour? No gravity, just a flat world and only a few platform obstacles?" Then I figured out that it wouldn't be a good game if the end goal wasn't to kill a big nasty monster. So, let's start this! --------------------------- Brother: I know you hate me... And I know why!! Brother, runs up the wall and get the key! Get the key!! Brother wakes up!!! Duh! Brother: Brother: WHAT WHAT THE HELL??? HOW DID I GET HERE??? Brother: Brother: All I did was jump from that height and something clicked in my mind... Something on a base of an idea I had when I was new at cutting down trees!! No Gravity!! Brother: Brother: How long was I out for? OH! NO! NO! THIS CANNOT BE! HE'S JUST NOT GONNA DIE! Brother: Father! Brother is in trouble! Father: Go get your brother! Father: Father: Brother is back, do it! JUST DO IT! Brother: Brother: Brother: Brother: Brother: Father: Oh brother... Brother: Oh brother what? Brother: Father: I don't want to cry.. but... are you dead? Brother: Father: Father: Brother: Father: Brother: Brother: STOP!!! STOP! I CAN NOT BELIEVE IT! YOU (crying) Father: Brother... Brother!? Father: Father: Father: Brother: Brother: Brother: Brother: Father: Father: Brother: Father: Brother: Father: Brother: Father:

The Battle For Souls game is ready to play, simply plug-in and play. Now you can have a local multiplayer game of Battle For Souls on your mobile device! • Easy to learn, fun to play • Dice to roll, cards to play • Tons of replayability, perfect for a friends game night • Robust enough for 2-4 players Features: In Battle For Souls, 2-4 players duke it out across 3 stages for the soul and glory of Hell or Heaven. Temptation and Sin cards placed during turn order are used by the Hell (left) or Heaven (right) team to tempt the player to sin in battle. Once a sin is placed, it may only be played before the following sin is played - there is no roll. If a sin is played before all remaining sin cards have been played, the battle ends in favor of Heaven. However, this only happens if all Hell cards have been played. A sin card played to the left of an already existing sin card is considered to be played to the left of the original sin, creating a new sin tile. Each sin has a value of 10, a die with a side of 6 and an opposed side of 1 (i.e. roll a 1, 1 point is taken off a player's score). Players also have a chance to attempt to save a fallen angel soul by playing an Intercession card, which will save the player a turn by removing all sin cards from their board. An Intercession is a free card and cannot be used to defend against the other team. Once all sin cards have been played, Heaven can use its Holy Relic cards to score Victory Points for the team. A Holy Relic is a free card that can only be used after an angel is played. Players can also use their Virtue cards to "save" angel souls by paying the angels a bonus. A Virtue card is played after the player has played all of his or her victory point cards and will save the player from losing all of their victory points. To win the game, a player must have the most Victory Points earned by placing the most sin tiles across their board. At the end of the game, the players with the most Victory Points, will be declared the winner and the player with the lowest number of angel souls left in his or her board will be the loser. GAME OVER In Battle For Souls, anyone can still lose even when there are no angels left in the game. But if there are
