Q: MySQL COUNT() takes too long to run I have a table with 6000 records. I'm running the following query: SELECT DISTINCT(firstname), (SELECT COUNT() FROM INV_USERS_ACTIVITY) FROM INV_USERS_ACTIVITY WHERE (int_left = 1) GROUP BY firstname ORDER BY firstname ASC which takes around 1 minute to return 600 results. What I noticed is that the DISTINCT clause is being applied on all records. I tried using DISTINCT ON (firstname) and it takes me 4 times as long to run. Is there a way I can speed up my query, perhaps without turning of the DISTINCT? A: If you use DISTINCT(), you will get the value count for each distinct value of firstname. If you want to get the distinct count for a group, you can use SUM() SELECT DISTINCT(firstname), SUM(COUNT()) AS cnt FROM INV_USERS_ACTIVITY WHERE (int_left = 1) GROUP BY firstname ORDER BY firstname ASC The invention relates generally to the field of testing and measurement, and more particularly to testing and measurement at high frequencies. As technology advances, the challenges to develop efficient measuring instruments of high frequency and wide dynamic range increase. For example, circuits with high switching speed and/or strong signal interfere with the precision measurements that are usually done with instruments having limited bandwidth or limited resolution. In other words, the measurement may be inaccurate or result in false measurements due to the high frequency signals. Further, the instrument may be unable to properly measure either the high or low frequencies. Integrated circuits are used in a wide variety of electrical applications, including personal computers and telecommunications equipment.
