I am thinking of simply using.ToShortDateString(), but it seems that this function only takes it to the format mm/dd/yyyy and not dd/mm/yyyy, or does it? The column is currently set to the datatype of DateTime in SQL Server A: Doesn't it work:

```
Console.WriteLine(DateTime.ParseExact("31/12/2014", "dd/MM/yyyy", null));

Output: 12/31/2014 There seems to be no way to define a format string for DateTime in the .NET framework. You can use various formatting functions like ToString() or String.Format() but you don't have full control over the format you get and, most importantly, you can only specify the date part, not the time. It is generally known that vehicle-to-vehicle wireless systems using Radio-Frequency Identification (RFID) tags can be used for vehicle-based applications. In a common implementation, an RFID tag that is placed on or otherwise associated with a vehicular component transmits a response signal, such as an RF signal, in response to an interrogation signal transmitted from a reader. This response signal can be sensed by the reader. In the case of an RFID tag in which an active response signal is transmitted, the RF signal that is sensed by the reader can also be used as a power source for the RF signal
