Serial Key

O.P.S. Â Â Â Â I have some other important software which also requires serial key.. So if you see the serial key size is wrong i have to investigate the problem.. Please tell me.. If you don't want to tell, then please tell me how to find the serial key please.. Best Regards.. ( Sorry in Advance.. Im from india) A: The new Nitro Pro software is going to be included at the start of the year, and you'll need the latest version - 10.5.10. I've just checked now and there was no reference to a serial number. At the moment it seems the only way to get the full version is to purchase the latest version of Nitro Pro from the Nitro website or a UK reseller. I found this link here: Q:

IIS 7+: Running a Python script in a virtual directory I'm running into an issue with IIS 7.x. I'd like to be able to run Python scripts on an IIS web server. The problem with this setup is that the Python scripts use the system PATH and Python itself if it is installed in C:\Python27, while the virtual folder points to C:\Python27\Scripts. Since the virtual path points to something that is not in the PATH, it fails. I've found a workaround for this, in that I can change the PATH to C:\Python27\Scripts while the virtual folder points to C:\Python27. Then if I start a Python script from the virtual directory, it works. Now I'm trying to figure out the next problem: If I start a script from a virtual directory, as above, it works, but if it's a script that's been downloaded from the Internet, it won't work, since Python isn't installed in C:\Python27. Does anybody know how to get Python to run it as a script from a virtual directory without having to install it on the web server? A: If I start a script from a virtual directory, as above, it works, but if it's a script that's been downloaded from the Internet, it won't work, since Python isn't installed in C:\Python27. Why? A: I had the same problem. It turns out that the method "Guess" was also activated, even if you have set it to None when you first installed the application. I had to delete it. Since I am using Windows 8, when I installed the application in the first place, the "guess method" was set to None. I did not see that option while I was installing the application
