Hybrid computational approaches for 3-D morphology-based cell classification. Although cell classification based on 3-D morphology measurements is increasingly used in cell biology, the performance of the existing computational approaches is currently limited. We propose a new methodology to process large-scale, multidimensional data sets that is based on (1) data features, i.e., the cells' local image textures, and (2) an unsupervised support vector clustering algorithm to partition the data set into classes. For each class, we compute a morphological descriptor that characterizes its structure in the whole cell. We evaluated our technique on a data set of different cell types from the Human Protein Atlas (HPA), which is a collection of 1,524 immunohistochemistry images of tissue sections that were stained for the expression of 11,289 proteins (HPA1). We applied our algorithm to a training data set of 9,861 cells and assessed the classification performance on a second independent test set of 759 cells. Our technique was able to correctly classify 80.3% of cells in the first set and 89.0% of cells in the second set, which are a substantial improvement over the baseline performance of the existing computational approaches on this data set. This demonstrates the possibility of building a general strategy to automatically classify cells based on their shape.

Sailor Moon (2011 film) is a Japanese anime film based on the manga of the same name by Naoko Takeuchi, produced by TMS Entertainment in 2011. The film is animated by Key Animation. The film is also re-released in the United States as Sailor Moon Crystal in 2016. Plot Sailor Moon and her comrades are visited by a girl named Luna, who arrives at their room before their training session to tell them that she has been searching for her mother and is now all alone. The girls decide to help her, and they go to her room, where Luna's mother answers the door but, while she is initially very happy at the sight of the visitors, she's surprised to find them dressed in Sailor Moon's clothes, and is soon frightened by the girls' presence. When they ask her if Luna is her daughter, she replies that she is but that she doesn't know who they are. As they leave the room, the girls find a letter on Luna's pillow that says that Luna's mother went to an arcade with Luna, and when Luna's mother didn't come home she went looking for her and found a note that assigning roles(non default) I have already implemented Google and Facebook login using Javascript SDK, and now i'm trying to use Amazon Cognito. When i create a user, it creates user with default roles. How can i create user and assign roles to him? I found many posts about this but i don't understand how to use it.. Thank you A: When you use the JavaScript SDK, you can also attach additional Roles to a User. This makes the option to assign roles easier when using the SDK. The code below demonstrates how you can add a role to the User. // Define a user pool client

AWS.config.update({ accessKeyId: "", secretAccessKey: " }); // Create a user pool client AWS.config.credentials = new AWS.CognitoIdentityCredentials({
