Must have tool to download Logitrace.Student in Longview: Stay with friend's place LONGVIEW - After the tornado touched down in Longview, Kentucky resident Clay Long drove from the epicenter of the storm into his hometown to see if there was a place to spend the night at his friend's house. "I said'man this is messed up,' and we started looking at his refrigerator," Long said. Long and his friend decided they would stay with a good friend of their friend at a house on the edge of town. He said when he first arrived in Longview Tuesday night and saw how devastated the area looked, he was a little scared. "I would've been scared to walk through some of that," Long said. Long said he is not a very emotional person but the devastation in the town made him tear up. He said it reminded him of what happened in New Orleans, where he spent a year studying abroad. "I have never seen anything like this," Long said. Long said the police brought the worst of it to him. They were no where to be found on the street and could not stop him from taking photos. The destruction was everywhere. "I could barely find a light switch in the dark," Long said. "It's just something you can't imagine." The rest of Long's plan to save money and still have money left over is to bike home
